CLAM SUPPER.

That clam chowder and social hour given on Friday evening by the Veteran Firemen's Association in their hall, made up an evening of rare enjoyment. A pleasant hour was had by those present before refreshments, after which the steaming hot clam chowder was announced, when all fell into line of march, and proceeded to the tables. The chowder was delicious, and everybody had his fill. The cigars lighted, all returned to the hall when Mr. Warren A. Pierce, the president of the association, gave a cordial welcome to the members and invited guests present. He defined the object of the association, saying it was founded on friendship, harmony and hospitality. The first speaker of the evening was Mr. E. S. Farmer, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, who assured the "boys" that he was glad to meet them on such a social occasion. Mr. Farmer had a pleasant word for the association. Chief Fireman Gott followed Mr. Farmer in a pleasant way. Mr. George Y. Wellington, gave an interesting account of the fire companies as he remembered them when Arlington was known as West Cambridge. Mr. Wellington spoke at some length of the old fire engines "Friendship," the "Good Intent," and the "Eureka," and related several amusing incidents of that earlier day. Then followed in the speaking line Chief Waldmyer of Winchester, Capt. E. P. Walker of the Fire Association of Somerville, Representative Howell Crosby, Capt. Bean of Somerville, C. S. Parker, George W. Lane, Capt. Kenny. A. A. Tilden chairman of the committee, Walter A. Robinson, Capt. King of Cambridge, Matthew Rowe, J. H. Hartwell, and Wilson Palmer of the Enterprise. Letters of regret for inability to be present from Selectman Crosby and William S. Setchell a former resident, were read by Secretary Schwamb. Among those present were E. S. Farmer, George Y. Wellington, Henry J. Locke, J. H. Hartwell, George D. Moore, Daniel Wyman, Walter Peirce, Warren A. Peirce, James A. Marden, Charles Gott, George Hill, George W. Lane, Alfred Swan, Charles Stevens, Howell Crosby, P. L. Waldmyer, George W. W. Sears, George H. Peirce, William T. King, Cambridge; Amos Dean, Melrose; E. P. Walker, Somerville; George W. McIntire, Cambridge; W. A. Emery, Cambridge; Charles W. Porter, Frank P. Winn, F. H. Gray, R. Walter Hilliard, J. S. Kenney, Charlestown; W. Burton Robinson, Melville Haskell, Sylvester Mead, R. W. LeBaron, F. W. Hodgdon, J. Howell Crosby, Walter A. Robinson, Thomas Hogan, Thomas Hodge, George Klingler, S. C. Bartwell, Robert Murray, Timothy E. Donahue, W. P. Schwamb, E. W. Schwamp, William Sweeney, Jacob Schumacher, Patrick Ahearn, Daniel Daley, M. Frank Mead and Wilson Palmer.

Mr. W. Burton Robinson favored the company with several selections, which he sang with much taste and expression. At a late hour the company wended its way homeward, all singing, "Long live the Arlington Veteran Firemen's Association."

Refracting Optician

Is certainly better than to have the wrong kind; for by using those which are unsuitable, new errors of refraction are caused. But with the right glasses, original, progressive or acquired errors are corrected and pass away as if they had never existed. I take great pains with my corrections and our fittings, and make no charge for thorough examinations.

ARLINGTON, AT HER BEST.

Arlington is now donning her summer dress, so that soon she will be seen at her best. We are in full sympathy with that little girl who teases her mother that she may appear in her brightest colors. And we are in sympathy, too, with that little boy who begs that he may put on that "other suit" so recently purchased in the city. We have never been quite able to understand why our good "Friends," the Quakers, should so strenuously insist in dressing in the plainest and most awkward way. When God has taken such infinite care in creating "the human form divine" so that every law of symmetry and of proportion has been observed, it is nothing other than the most absurd of all things that men and women in a religious way, should attempt to deform and make ugly what God has made so attractive and beautiful. Nothing in art has ever equalled the human form, so that men and women everywhere are to be commended when they so attire and adorn their persons that the eye shall be attracted and pleased thereby. It is not a weakness in the sex we represent, that it admires a woman so becomingly dressed that her charms of form and feature are thereby revealed. We do not question that God loves a tastefully dressed woman and a tastefully dressed man much better than He does those of the slouchy sort. Why shouldn't the Infinite Artist delight in His works of supreme art? All Nature at this season of the year puts on robes of exquisite beauty. Both leaf and flower, together with the deep green of the fields, are all for us to behold and admire. Every line of grace and form, together with all the most delicate tint of color, and with all the fragrance of the floral world, are ours in multiplied form in this first outburst of the summer time. What a marvel is this resurrected life of the year! The swelling bud and the opening flower are beyond any explanation of our most learned scholars. The man who stoutly objects to the "miracles" doesn't even know how a blade of grass grows. The better way is to end all fruitless discussion of the why and the wherefore and accept the glorious facts which are within sight of him who keeps his two eyes open. The outward world is now in evidence, and nowhere more so than here in Arlington. We make no apology for writing so frequently of this more than delightfully located town. It is the most utter nonsense, and contrary to all mathematical reasoning that one may have "too much of a good thing." As we stood the other morning on a height of ground, overlooking the quiet waters of Spy pond, and took in the immediate surroundings of those silvery depths, manifesting themselves in the renewed life of the season, we could but involuntarily exclaim what more beautiful under the sun!

Arlington is distinguished far and wide for its natural scenery. We remember a few years ago of taking part in the discussion of some educational subject before the Iowa State Teachers' Association, when we had occasion to refer to Arlington and her schools by way of illustrating some point we had in mind. When the session for that day adjourned a man in the audience came to us and said: "I was glad to hear you speak so pleasantly of Arlington, Mass. 'That it is one of the most delightful towns, I know full well; for,' he added, 'I was for some years principal of its High school, and had my home there.' Yes, Arlington is well and favorably known, far and wide. And now, when 'she is adorned as a bride for her husband,' let every man of us, and every woman, too, advertise her for all she's worth. She is worthy of all the good things that may be said of her. Let us be sure that we say them."

EMINENTLY FAIR.

In the first issue of this paper we announced ourselves in part as follows: "The purpose of the Arlington Enterprise will be to show and prove itself both a progressive and an aggressive sheet. Non-partisan in its politics, yet it will not be without decided political preferences for the right man in the right place. These columns will be uniformly open for the courteous and manly discussion of all public questions." All this we have done, and shall continue to do. Our double and twisted determination is to be eminently fair, and eminently just. These columns, as we have said so many times previous to this date, are open to everybody for an expression of his or her opinion upon all questions relating to politics, religion, education, and whatever else concerns the individual or the state. It doesn't matter how widely this or that communication sent us for publication may differ from our opinion or view of the matter, the communication will all the same find space in these columns. You may be sure we shall have our say, and you are the only one at fault if you don't have yours. This much we say by way of remembrance, and we say it for the reason that he who signed himself "Citizen" in our last issue, hints pretty strongly that there is a political ring in Arlington which is attempting to boss things. As we are comparatively a new comer, we have thought it the better way to be somewhat modest until we should have taken in the situation. However, we have our two eyes wide open, and our ears are in good hearing condition, so we are not likely to let anything slip which is of interest to the people of Arlington. The Enterprise as we said in our last issue, is of and for the people, and it will in every instance, put on its "fighting cap" at the first indication of any "ring" business in our town politics." This is no threat on our part, merely a statement of fact. In a word, there are no inner circles, neither can there be in Arlington politics, that the Enterprise will not attempt to invade, even without any previous invitation so to do. So that we trust that we shall hear from "Citizen" again so soon as he shall gather further proof of any existing political ring as he more than suggests in his communication of April 29. While the Enterprise shall be eminently fair, as we have already said, yet it stands ready to strike right and left, the moment any public evil shall show its head. That journal is not worthy its high calling, and the privileges attaching thereto, that shall not prove itself in a large way a leader in public thought, and always the vindicator of the rights of the people. The Enterprise openly and honestly announced itself in its prospectus. We have taken our text, and we are bound to preach our sermon. While we call no man master, yet we hold ourselves as the servant of the people in all that is promotive of their higher welfare and interest. While we love everybody, we fear nobody, so that our field of operation is well nigh unlimited, and delightfully free at every turn.

OUR AMERICAN MARRIED LIFE.

Our American married life is not as secure in the home as it should be. The frequent instances occurring in what is denominated "society life," whereby the home is invaded, and all domestic happiness thereby destroyed, are not only startling but shocking to the moral sense of an intelligent people. Our seeming willingness to readily forgive lapses from virtue in so-called higher life is subversive of all that purity which rightfully belongs to the home life.

When the wife of a husband obtaining his divorce from her upon statutory grounds, hastens to become within a few hours the wife of another, and when that other is not only willing but anxious to make her his own in spite of her previously broken marriage vow, it is high time our legislators throughout the land to earnestly inquire what may be done, and this, too, without delay, that our home American life may be kept inviolate. The very moment the attempt is made to popularize irregularities in family life, that very moment do the sanctities of home suffer a shock that detracts from virtue, and makes of little or no account the mutual pledges made at the marriage altar. We curse Mormonism in all its forms, and rightfully so, and work ourselves up to fever heat lest the much advertised Roberts, who has three wives, should be allowed to take the seat in Congress to which he has been elected, giving little or no thought to those living double lives almost within our very reach. We have, and we speak it aloud without apology, as much respect at least for Roberts, who is giving home support to those three wives as he promised he would do when he married them, as we have for those men and women aspirants in the world of wealth and position, who so lightly regard their marriage obligations as to be ready within the shortest possible public notice to marry the wife of another when the divorce of that other has been decreed upon statutory grounds. We say "public notice," for the reason that there must have been in such instance a private understanding between the woman and husband No. 2 long before husband No. 1 had secured his decree of divorce.

Why shouldn't the American people look squarely in the face our social evils in such a variety of forms, and then call things by their right names? When the woman shall be satisfied with one husband, and the man shall be satisfied with one wife, then much will have been done to purify and make clean all married life.

DEWEY DAY.

Monday was Dewey Day all round. Boston, New York, Chicago, San Francisco, and indeed all the cities throughout the land, remembered both Dewey and the Maine with a vim. We were a good deal interested in reading in the Sunday's World an interesting sketch of Dewey's early life. It seems from all we can gather, that Dewey had lots of fight in him from the start. According to the authorities he was easily the most troublesome boy in school. Invariably heading conspiracies so as to make null and void the work of the of the schoolmaster, he was kept constantly busy in defying all rightful authority. At last, however, he found his master in Mr. Pangborn the schoolteacher, who gave "George" a thorough going thrashing, which as Dewey says, made a man of him. As "all is well that ends well" there can be no unfavorable criticism made of Dewey as a school boy. He was even at that early period of his life only in preparation for the magnificent fight he made in Manila bay. Admiral Dewey is one of the bravest and at the same time one of the most modest of men. His naval record eclipses that of the world.

"THE ETHICS OF RE-MARRIAGE."

The above is the heading of an article published in the Congregationalist of May 4th, and the following is what that paper says in part upon the subject:

"A marriage ceremony, duly legalized by a Congregational minister—we deeply regret to say—in Greenwich, Ct., last week, raises some very important issues, vital to the permanency of decency in American society. The facts in the main are these: At 3.20 p. m., a judge of the Supreme Court of New York granted a divorce to the husband of a woman, at the same time directing that she should not marry again until her former husband was dead, and also ordering that the minor children of the couple should be given into the exclusive custody of the father. Adultery is the only cause for which divorces are granted in that state. Five hours later the woman appeared in a New England town with one who wished to make her his wife. They found town officials and a clergyman, who conformed to the civil law and pronounced them man and wife.

"After studying the facts, the question naturally arises, could anything more conclusive revealing the evil of state control of marriage and divorce legislation be imagined? A New York court's decision on the subject of marriage and divorce has force now only with those whose penury forbids them from moving and residing elsewhere. Once across the New Jersey or Connecticut line, the judicial decree is not worth the paper on which it is written. Some day the national scandal will become so portentous that we shall have a uniform federal marriage and divorce law, as is the case in Germany and Switzerland. Again, contemplation of the facts suggests whether clergymen of churches other than Roman Catholics and Protestant Episcopal have not some duties they owe to society when asked to marry people who are strangers to them, but whose civil credentials are irreproachable, as no doubt they were in this case." The effect of such acts as make up the record in this case upon the life of the nation, the family, and the individuals concerned, is damaging. It panders to the carnal man, not to the spiritual: it is individualistic to an abnormal degree, and hence wickedly unsocial: it makes what should be a sacrament a sacrilege, and brings laws, courts, and clergy into disrepute."

HOW DELIGHTFULLY REFRESHING.

Divorced wives seem to be held at a premium. How delightfully refreshing it will be for Mrs. Perry Belmont and her sister-in-law Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont to come together on some quiet evening in "leafy June" and discuss the manly and amiable qualities of their former husbands who are now widowers de facto, if not de jure. It would be peculiarly fitting that the tears they would naturally shed on such a retrospective occasion, over not "what might have been," but over what actually has been, should be mingled with all the fragrance of the month of roses.

PLEASANT READING MATTER.

The reminiscences of Julia Ward Howe, now being published in the Atlantic Monthly, affords one the most attractive and interesting reading. What this grand representative of her sex has to say in the May number of the Atlantic of the late Ex-Gov. John A. Andrew, the Rev. James Freeman Clark, John Brown and others, fill a most agreeable hour.

And then one will find much pleasure in reading in the May number of the Arena an article under the heading of "The Divine Opulence."

THE WORLD MOVES.

The world surely moves, and especially the religious world. Just think of it! The Old South Church in Boston, on Thursday of 1st week, voted to abandon the Westminster "Confession of Faith." The pastor of that church, the Rev. Dr. George A. Gordon, says that to be willing to be damned for the glory of God, is too much for the average man; to all of which we respond, "amen."

THE FORD BILL.

The Ford Franchise Tax Bill, which will soon become a law in New York, adds $1,000,000,000 in franchises of corporations to the taxable property of that state. It is estimated that $20,000,000 of additional revenue will be raised by the measure. When the vote passed the Assembly cheers went up for Gov. Roosevelt and for the New York World.

ODDS AND ENDS.

The planes of cleavage in the Democratic party are still multiplying.

"Has he kicked the bucket?" "No, he has only turned a little pale."

What is called "voodooism" on the Southern plantations is called "mind cure" in Boston.

"Why, Pat, for Heaven's sake, what is the matter?" "Well, sorr, I swallowed a pertater-bug; and although, sorr, I took some paruss-green within five minutes after, ter kill th' baste, shill he's just raisin' th' divil inside o'me, sorr."

"Professor, what has become of Tom Appleton? Wasn't he studying with the class last year?" "Ah, yes; Appleton—poor fellow! A fine student, but absent-minded in the use of chemicals, very. That discoloration on the ceiling—notice it?"
"Yes."
"That's he."

Some of the old folks now living remember when nails, both lath and ten-penny, were all made by a blacksmith, and when birch bark was used under clapboards to keep the heat of buildings within as we now use prepared or tarred paper.

"Good masters make good servants."

It is estimated that one horse-power is sufficient to keep twenty-seven million watches running.

"A snow year, a rich year."

If there be virtue in the above saw and the popular notion that snow and frost exercises a fertilizing power on the land, then the coming season should be an unusually prosperous one for the farming communities.

"Let each man think himself an act of God. His mind a thought, his life a breath of God; And let each try, by great thoughts and good deeds, To show the most of heaven he hath in him."
—Bailly.

Patient: "To what do you attribute the curative properties of your springs?" Proprietor: "Well, I guess the advertising I've done has had something to do with it."

Ethnologist: What is your national song?

Samoan: It is a melody consisting of "Star Spangled Banner," "Wacht am Rhine" and "God Save the Queen."

Algerite: "All this evidence about the beef is old and stale now." Mile-site: "That's what was the trouble with the beef, you know."

The satire of the day is the sight of a New York pier crowded with city officials and obsequious henchmen of high and low degree to give Boss Croker a send-off "fit for a king." The Bowery must have presented a deserted appearance.

Object lesson growing out of the Coghlan episode: Don't tell the truth at the wrong time.

Can it be possible that there is a grain of truth in the numerous rumors that have been afloat for some time that the beef-investigating committee are preparing a whitewashing report reflecting upon the integrity and veracity of hundreds of army officers who have given positive evidence of the unfitness of the beef and that the commissary officers and beef-packers who were deeply interested in disputing all that had been said against the beef are to pose in history as the victims of a most atrocious conspiracy with the commanding general of the U. S. army as the chief conspirator?

The next session of the Farmers' National Congress will be held in Boston Oct. 3-6. The membership of this congress is made up as follows: A member from each congressional district and two at large, to be appointed by the governor of each state (practical farmers); each agricultural college and experiment station is entitled to one delegate. Let Boston do her best royally to welcome and entertain our agricultural brethren with whom her interests are most closely allied.

"Papa, I swallowed the powder the doctor left me a minute ago, ain't it time I was taking the shot now?"

Hospital physician: "How many deaths last night?" Nurse: "Nine." "Why, I ordered medicine for ten." "Yes, but one would not take it."

An inch of rain means a gallon of water spread over a surface of nearly two square feet, or a fall of about one hundred tons to an acre of ground.

Wife: "Wear your overcoat, dear. You will get pneumonia. Husband: "No I won't, I can't afford to get anything new."

An Italian patient in a New York hospital recently deliberately chewed and swallowed a fever-thermometer before he could be made to understand that the instrument was not intended as a medicine. Probably it did not allay the fever.

Henry Ward Beecher was an excellent judge of cigars. In the winter of '76 he lectured in the Town Hall in Melrose. In a small room adjoining sat the janitor smoking a cigar, and, with the door slightly ajar, was taking in the lecture. Suddenly Beecher paused in the midst of his lecture and exclaimed in his inimitable manner: "I wouldn't mind that man's smoking out there, if he would smoke a good cigar." This episode was the feature of the evening. Beecher, while a most eloquent impromptu speaker and preacher, was not an especially brilliant lecturer. His fame as a preacher, however, made him much sought for in the lecture field, in those palmy days of lyceum lectures.

Henry Cavendish, one of the most distinguished chemists and physicists of his or any other age was one of the most eccentric and peculiar men that ever existed upon our planet. Born in high life, descended from two of the most aristocratic and noble families in England, having for grandfathers the Dukes of Kent and Devonshire, he lived for nearly half a century totally isolated from the world and all human sympathies. He passed through the period of boyhood and early manhood in utter obscurity. Alone in a spacious house in the outskirts of London this singular man and great genius worked through many long years until he had filled it with every conceivable device for unfolding and illustrating principles of science—electrical machines, Leyden-jars, eudiometers, lenses, object prisms, concave mirrors, a rough old telescope peering through the roof, etc. The Cavendish House was conspicuous for the absence of all appliances for house keeping and articles of comfort and taste.

He had several servants, all males with one exception. He was shy of women. If he saw his female servant in one of the rooms, he would fly to other quarters. He could not understand or endure praise or flattery. He possessed vast wealth, and yet he had not the slightest knowledge of the extent of his riches. He despised money and made as little use of it as possible. He never troubled himself about matters of religion.

ion. He never talked on the subject. Asked to express his views of God, he replied, "Don't ask me such questions; I never think of them."

The circumstances of his death are as remarkable as his career in life. Without premonitory disease or sickness, or decadence of mental powers, he made up his mind that he was about to die. Closing the doors of his laboratories, arranging his papers and apparatus with care as if preparing for a journey, he ascended to his sleeping apartment, rang his bell for his servant, and gave him his commands as follows; "Edgar, listen. I am now to give you my last command. I am going to die. I shall upon your departure, lock my room. Here let me be alone for eight hours. Tell no one. Let no one come near me. When the time has passed, come and see if I am dead. This is my last command. Now, go."

The servant knew from long experience that to dispute his master's will would be useless. He bowed, therefore, and turned to go away.

"Stay—one word! Repeat exactly the order I have given."

Edgar repeated the order, and retired from the chamber, but did not keep his promise. He summoned a physician. The physician inquired if he felt ill. "I am not ill, but I am about to die. Don't you think a man of eighty has lived long enough? Why am I disturbed? I had matters to arrange. Give me a glass of water."

The glass of water was given him; he drank it, turned on his back, closed his eyes, and immediately expired.

The voracity of colleges and universities is getting to be notorious and the success of the president of these institutions is rated largely by his ability to squeeze money out of their alumni. Here is President Harper of Chicago University plaintively announcing that this institution "needs $9,000,000 right away."

"It is better to go a long way round than to walk or talk with a skunk!"—Kate Sanborn.

"Our incubator has its second load, 225 eggs, and 175 chicks are living happily in our brooders and my head man has really improved on them by making a glass top, so the little chee-weepers can enjoy a constant sun bath which solves the problem of a 'home without a mother.' The feeble ones we now throw away or bury at once. I can see them hanging to life by a single thread, but they look as if they would much rather die, so I gratify them. It is sternly the survival of the fittest in incubator biz."—Kate Sanborn.

Doesn't the racy and breezy style exhibited in the above excerpts remind you, Bro. Palmer, of the nice things said of the brilliant daughter of Prof. Edwin D. Sanborn way back in the 50's when you proudly sat in the shades of Old Dartmouth and (doubtless) cast wistful glances in common with all students of that day across the campus from the windows of old Dartmouth Hall?

The new gospel of those clergymen who approve of the policy of "benevolent assimilation" at the mouth of the cannon reads thus: "Go ye into all the world and shoot the gospel into every creature. Gen. Shafter gives them the comforting assurance that 'it may be necessary to kill half the population of the Philippines in order that the remaining half may be lifted from their semi-barbarity to the civilization we are ready to give them.'"

The plan of "preferred stock" is to prefer the new subscribers and defer and rob the old.

BELMONT.

Dr. Knowles is putting on an addition to his house.

Postmaster Adams has just completed some repairs on his store.

School street is closed while work upon the sewer is going on.

Miss Helen Hunt of Winchester is visiting the Misses Wilkins, on Mystic street.

J. B. Russell and family are now at their summer residence on Pleasant street.

The new steam roller has arrived. Now you may expect the smoothest kind of roads.

The Puppets' Association is to give an entertainment this (Saturday) evening in the Town Hall.

The Belmont Park Ladies' Whist Club held an important business meeting at the house of H. A. Stone, on Monday afternoon.

Miss Ellen Daily has purchased a new wheel. Miss Daily evinces much grace and ease on the bicycle.

The Knights of Columbus at their meeting on Tuesday evening initiated seven new members.

Mr. and Mrs. William Howell Reed are now well settled in their summer home on Concord avenue.

The engagement of Miss Ethel A. Eager to Prof. Wood of the Boston Institute of Technology is announced.

The Belmont High school club is in excellent practice. The club is to play today (Saturday) with the Winchester High school club.

James McGuire and William Collins shot a black snake in the town lot on Thursday afternoon. The length of his snakeship was 5 feet and 2 inches.

An enjoyable dance by the young people was the order of the hour, in the Town Hall, on Wednesday evening.

Mr. Gus Carlson, riding his wheel on Friday morning down Concord avenue, run into or against Mr. T. W. Brown's dog, and was thrown violently from his bicycle. Mr. Carlson sustained several severe bruises, and his wheel was badly damaged.

Charles H. Hanrahan, formerly the assistant of Town Treasurer Chenery, has now a position in Jordan & Marsh's store, so that at present Mr. Chenery is doing his own "figuring." The town treasurer, however, is on the lookout for help in his busy office.

Belmont is one of the most attractive towns in the old Bay State, and also one of the most quiet. We never find its men and women under any undue excitement. They take the world as it comes, and let other people do the worrying.

We called at the Central school building, at 3 o'clock on Friday P. M., and vigorously pulled the bell, but no sign of superintendent, teachers or pupils manifested itself. We did, however, raise the janitor, who informed us upon inquiry "there is no school after 1 o'clock P. M." If one desires to catch the Belmont schools in session, he must make a morning visit.

Cards are out announcing the approaching marriage on Saturday, May 20th, at the home of the bride in Philadelphia, of Miss Emma Johns Coryell and Mr. William Gardner Rice of Pleasant street place, Arlington.

We are glad to learn Mrs. W. G. Kimball, who returned from the Mass. General Hospital a short time ago after undergoing an operation, is slowly improving, and that the doctor hopes to have her out soon.

The reflectors on the incandescent lamps are a decided improvement. With the new contract now on it looks as though we were to have better service.

John Breen, whose death occurred at his home 962 Mass. avenue on Saturday morning, April 29, was a man of untiring industry and of unquestioned integrity. He was highly regarded by all who knew him. In his home he was the happiest of men. Mr. and Mrs. Breen were to each other during the many years of their married life, what they promised they would be at the marriage altar. Their home was an unusually delightful one. In his death Arlington has lost an honest, upright citizen and the bereaved family a devoted husband and father.

The annual business meeting of the Arlington Woman's Club was held on Thursday, May 4. Election of officers, consideration of reports and amending the constitution constituted the bulk of business. At the next meeting May 18, a social and reception, Mr. Copeland of Howard is expected to read from Kipling's works. This will be the final meeting of the year. The following are the officers elected for the coming year.

President, Miss Ida F. Robbins; 1st Vice President, Miss Emily Tolman; 2nd Vice President, Elizabeth Yerrington. Recording secretary, Miss Agnes Damon. Corresponding secretary, Mrs. Lilian Sawyer. Treasurer, Miss Ellen W. Hodgdon. Auditor, Mrs. Maude A. Percy. Executive committee, for three years, Mrs. Ida I. Squire, Mrs. Mary Bushnell, Mrs. Isabelle Heustis, Miss C. A. Brackett. The club voted to appropriate the sum of $150.00 for the school picture fund.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS.

Mr. Flemming of Oakland avenue has removed his family to Dorchester.

Mr. Edward Nicoll was taken so ill on Wednesday night that Dr. Stickney was called.

Miss Lord of Gardiner, Me., and formerly a resident here, is on a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Ober's.

Mr. G. W. Perkins of Appleton street has been and still is quite sick. Dr. Hooker is attending him.

Mr. Horace Lewis is making some substantial improvements on the exterior of his house on Mass. avenue.

Miss Springer of Claremont avenue has been obliged to give up her business position in Boston on account of ill health.

The Hillside Literary Union will hold its probable final meeting of the season on Wednesday evening next, in the lecture room of Park Avenue Church.

Architect Snow is drafting plans for the house that Mr. and Mrs. Schenck are to erect on Appleton street. Mr. Snow is to have the building in charge.

Mrs. Henry C. Clarke of Manchester, N. H., who has been the guest of Mrs. Mixter, 184 Westminster avenue, returned to her home in the Queen City of the Granite State on Tuesday.

There will be no C. E. meeting in Park Avenue Church next Sunday evening. The members join in the union C. E. services in Congregation Church, Arlington, to be held at 5:30 p. m.

The coming of summer is heralded not alone by birds and awakened nature, but also by great crowds from the cities of Boston and Cambridge. Last Sunday was an indication of what we may expect.

It would seem as though the much talked of electric car lines to Lexington and Belmont were a game of high bluff. It seems a pity that the franchise twice granted by Lexington should fail to be carried out.

There will be an important meeting of the members of the Park Avenue Congregational Church next Monday—May 8—night, at 8 o'clock, to be held in the lecture room, to consider matters of considerable interest.

Tom Elder, who has been instrumental in accomplishing so much for Crescent Hill, seems to be bubbling over with health. He looks like a veritable son of the soil. We suspect he has been "tickling the earth with a hoe."

Ice cream, one day and hot soda the next! A variety surely enough to gratify all tastes. If one day's weather doesn't suit you, the next certainly will. Great country this! Meanwhile, remember the old adage: "Ne'er cast a clout till May is out."

As we stood on the very tip of the Heights, on Wednesday morning, Mt. Monadnock, up in New Hampshire, came apparently so near to us through the unusually clear atmosphere that we felt like doffing our hat and extending our right hand.

We noticed among those present at the Euterpe concert on Monday evening our enterprising druggist, and, if one may judge from appearances, then it is safe to say that Mr. Dame thoroughly enjoyed the evening. He particularly enjoyed the PRELUDE.

The Brattle street depot was broken into on Tuesday at noon while the station agent was at dinner. The burglar got nineteen cents in money, twenty-seven revenue stamps and a few passenger tickets. A jimmy was used on the door to effect an entrance. At present writing the burglar has not been caught.

Mrs. Mixter and her friend, Mrs. Clarke, had an enjoyable hour at the recent graduating exercises of the class of '99 of the Emerson College of Oratory in Boston. A brilliant feature of the occasion was the recital by Mrs. Jesse Eldridge Southwick of several selections. Mrs. Southwick is a teacher in the college.

Miss Abbott of Manchester, N. H., is on a two weeks' visit to her sister, Mrs. C. T. Parsons, of Claremont avenue. Miss Abbott is distinguished as a violinist, and is a member of the Ariel Quartette, Boston. This quartette has but recently returned from a starring tour throughout the larger cities of the West.

Holy communion service next Sunday morning in Park Avenue Congregational Church at 10.45. Also reception of new members, with short address by the pastor. At 12 noon Sabbath school and pastor's Bible class. At 4 p. m., Junior C. E. meeting. At 7.15 p. m., service in the church, when Dr. Stemberger will base his sermon on "The Rich Fool." Three large sized pulpits will be used in illustration.

Mr. M. L. Severy is having an ornamental stone wall at the front of his residence, on Park avenue, while the verandah has a stone front. Patrick Flynn, who is a professional in his line of work, is the contractor and builder of this stone work. The wall or fence is capped with Portland cement, while the joints are interlined with white beads. The square piers are built with granite corners, filled in between with rubble stone, producing a pleasing effect. The caps will soon be on. Mr. Flynn is nothing less than an artist. He well understands the laws of symmetry and proportion, so that whatever he designs is sure to fill the bill. Although he lives just over the line in East Lexington, yet Mr. Flynn is well known in Arlington, and does much work for Arlington people.

The Sunshine Club held its annual meeting on Wednesday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. T. A. Jernegan, 177 Park avenue. The following interesting report was read by the secretary and treasurer, Mrs. C. T. Parsons:

Mrs. President and Members of the Sunshine Club: The Sunshine Club begins today its fourth year with a membership of 46. Forty-three meetings have been held during the year, with an average attendance of 12.

Only three moonshine parties have been held—the first at Mrs. Partridge's, Oct. 26th; the second at Mrs. Jernegan's, Jan. 26th, and the third at Mrs. J. T. White's, March 28th. All of these parties were very enjoyable and very largely attended, especially the last one, which occurred on one of the stormiest evenings of the season.

On the evening of July 1st a very successful lawn festival was held on the grounds of Mr. T. A. Jernegan. The weather on that occasion, contrary to its usual custom, was simply perfect in every respect, which added greatly to the enjoyment and also to the financial success. The grounds were beautifully decorated with red, white and blue and Japanese lanterns. Refreshments were served from a number of prettily decorated booths by ladies of the club, and an entertainment, consisting of an operetta by a large number of children, was a very pleasing feature. A band of music on the piazza added much to the enjoyment of the guests. Over $80 was netted from this party, half of which was given to Mr. Prentiss of Arlington for the Fresh Air Fund.

As the report of the treasurer will show, we have been able to send many flowers to cheer the sick and give voice to our sympathy for those near us who have been called through sorrow and death. We have also been able to give aid financially to some in need of the necessities of life. One of the most important things that has been accomplished by the club this year is the interest aroused in the forming of a home for aged people in our town. We think the need for such a home is coming to us in the near future, possibly combined with a hospital. This great work can only be done by the help and co-operation of other societies and people of the town, but we have pledged ourselves as a club by formal vote to do all in our power for this end. As a club we have enjoyed a prosperous and pleasant year together, and should take up our work for the coming year with a determination to make it not only a pleasant social feature of this community, but to make ourselves a power for helpfulness and good to a large number who may come within our influence.

Respectfully submitted,
M. C. PARSONS, Sec'y.

On motion the report was accepted.

The treasurer's account with the club for the year ending May 3d, 1899, is as follows:

The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. T. A. Jernegan; vice-president, Mrs. Partridge; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. C. T. Parsons; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. T. White.

The Sunshine Club is worthy of its name, for it has carried through its charitableness to many a home. Its mission is to help those who need aid and encouragement. Its gospel consists in "going about doing good."

We hope and expect to see its present plans for a home for the aged to take shape in a permanent building, with the necessary funds to provide for the same. This annual gathering of the club was an enjoyable one, and a promising one for the future. After a collation was served, prizes were distributed to each member of the club.

The grand concert given on Monday evening in the Park Avenue Congregational Church by the Euterpe Ladies' Orchestra was tastefully arranged and well rendered. In the first place, the young ladies making up the orchestra were fair of feature and of attractive presence, which fortunate fact went far in lending to the hour a charm which it would not have otherwise had. "Handsome is that handsome does" should be inverted in its reading. The following instruments were brought into play, namely: Violins, cornet, clarinet, cello, trombone, drums and piano. The opening selection was "March from Suite," by Franz Lachner. The rendering of the entire musical programme by the nine fair artists was much enjoyed by the audience, so that the encores were most enthusiastically given. The music of "The Mugginsville Spinster Orchestra" of Skowhegan was an enjoyable feature of the evening. The singing by Miss Fleda Wynne of the N. E. Conservatory of Music added much to the programme. Miss Wynne has a voice of peculiar sweetness, and her expression was in keeping with the spirit of the selections she sang. Naturally enough the audience was especially interested in Mrs. Kidder's readings, for she is, as is well known, a resident of Arlington. Mrs. Kidder is a graduate of Emerson's College of Oratory, so she is a professional in elocutionary art. "The Tennessee Story," exceedingly difficult in its variety of interpretation, was admirably rendered. Following the encore given Mrs. Kidder, she gave "The Raggedy Man." Her "Mr. Dooley on his Cousin 'Garge' Dewey" was crammed full of humor and good hits. Her closing selection, "The Recessional," by Kipling, Mrs. Kidder gave in a delightful way. The rendition of all her selections revealed the fact that she is imbued with the spirit and thought of the several writers, and that she is in possession of that art which gives happy and suitable expression to the written word. It is a source of no little satisfaction that we have here in Arlington those who can so interest and entertain a public audience as can Mrs. Kidder.

The entire evening was a credit to the Park Avenue Congregational Church, which well knows how to entertain and instruct. But for the thunder storm the house would have been packed. Even with the rain coming down, there was a good audience present.

Arlington Locals.

Mr. R. W. LeBaron put in his best work to finish installing the electric lights in the Veteran Fireman's Association rooms so they could be used last evening. It is an improvement to the hall.

Ever since the Enterprise approached the subject of closing the stores at 6 o'clock and allowing the proprietors and clerks to have their evenings, there has been a growing feeling that it ought to be, and it fell upon Mr. Bird, manager of Yerxa & Xerxa's grocery to push the project to a finish. This week, by going around among the storekeepers, he obtained the signatures of all the grocery and provision dealers to close at six each night until Sept. 1, excepting Friday and Saturday. In other towns where we have been this has been done with the greatest success, and with a saving of fuel and lights, and the clerks were better fitted for the day's work. We understand that the hardware, furniture, and shoe dealers are thinking of following this example. If this is given a fair trial never again will the storekeepers return to an old custom which should have been blotted out long ago.

It is with pleasure that we refer our readers to the cut in this issue of the Robbins Spring Hotel, so delightfully situated upon a height of ground from which the most charming outlook is had. This hotel of which we wrote at some length in our last issue, is to be opened to the public June 15. The rooms are large and spacious, well lighted and well ventilated. Right in hand's reach of the hotel are the health giving waters of Robbins Springs. An analysis of these waters by the State Board of Health pronounce them excellent. These waters have for the past seventy-five years supplied families in Arlington, Cambridge, Boston and vicinity. The Robbins Spring Hotel with its surroundings cannot be excelled. And the manager of the hotel, L. L. P. Atwood, is the most agreeable of gentlemen, but he is a hustler in business. Read his advertisement in another column.
